

75 years have passed since the day of Victory in the Great Patriotic War, but its echo still does not calm down in the hearts of people. We have no right to forget the horror of this war. We have no right to forget those soldiers who died for our bright future. We must remember everyone and everything. It is necessary to honor the memory of the most terrible war that has affected every family, from father to son.

Viktor Rozhin, 10 polytech
Republican Lyceum, 2020.