

Roman Nikiforovich Syromyatnikov

April 16, 1904 - September 1945

Due to poor health during the war, he remained in his native village of Megino-Aldan, where he worked on a collective farm, and also helped families whose relatives left to serve. However, at the end of 1944, he was called to the front. He did not take part in the battles actually, but helped in the rear. Fortunately, the war soon ended and my great-grandfather returned home, where 12 children were waiting for him, including my grandmother.
